DESIGN

The system will have a products page and sales whose details will be stored in two database tables. Below is an entity relationship diagram showcasing the details and table relationships.

The products table has a one to many relationship with sales. My systems User Interface will aim to imitate the one in this link: https://giyaas.herokuapp.com/